Robert Frost

We have enjoyed the richness of life. At our high school days of rivalry, participation and excitement, we recall our triumphs and defeats, our disappointments and delights. The memories of these days will continue to guide us as the journey leads us to Marquette's future; we will always remember.

We look forward to the future. Living in a world struggling to understand its own complexity, we know we will be challenged. Realizing that we, as Americans, will encounter many difficulties and human limitations, we realize that, no matter how complex the future, we are not afraid.

We look forward to the future. We envision a world in which understanding and respect for all and cooperation will be the norm. We look forward to lives filled not only with personal fulfillment and achievement, but also with the knowledge that the Catholic spirit which guides our lives will enlighten and expand our individual spiritual horizons.

Our journey has reached a crossroad. With the Marquette education we have received, we know we will be able to reach our goals with achievements and our determination with personal satisfaction. With the Marquette experience as our map of life, we will not go astray. Hopefully, when we come to the final crossroad, we will accept the final road to reward.
